OUR VISION

A sustainable world where all people live in freedom, prosperity, dignity and peace.

WHO WE ARE

As the largest alliance of U.S. based international NGOs and partners in the United States, InterAction's 180-plus members work in every country. Collectively, members invest and manage over $15 billion a year.

WHAT WE DO

InterAction is a convener, leader and voice of our community. We enable members and partners to mobilize, enhance their impact, align common interests, build community, and promote learning and innovation. We set the world's highest non-profit standards. We form effective partnerships with civil society, government, and the private sector.

PREFACE

Intended to ensure and strengthen public confidence in the integrity, quality, and effectiveness of member organizations and their programs, the standards were created when the overseas work of Private Voluntary Organizations (PVOs), now internationally known as non-governmental organizations (NGOs) was dramatically increasing in scope and significance. Defining the financial, operational, and ethical code of conduct for InterAction and its member organizations; these high and objective standards, self-applied, set InterAction members apart from many other charitable organizations. Indeed, in various aspects, the InterAction NGO Standards exceed the prevailing standards of the BBB Wise Giving Alliance (WGA)¹.

Since January 1994, all existing and prospective InterAction member organizations have had to certify compliance with the original and amended Standards on a biennial basis.

To include associate members in the Standards, the Associate Member Standards was approved by the InterAction Board of Directors on March 6, 2014. The language from the Associate Member Standards was integrated into the Standards in March 2017.

HISTORY

The Standards were born at a meeting of the InterAction executive committee in March of 1989. Kenneth Phillips, then president of Childreach, urged InterAction to develop a set of ethical standards covering governance, financial reporting, fundraising, public relations, management practice, human resources, public policy, and program services. The effort was initiated in recognition of both the growing size and consequence of the programs of InterAction members and the significance of the members publicly committing themselves, as a community, to a reliable means to ensure the public's trust.

Between 1990 and 1992, a Standards Committee representing a cross-section of InterAction organizations met frequently and circulated several drafts of each section to the full membership. The Standards were unanimously approved at the November 5, 1992 InterAction board meeting. Self-certification began in 1993 and requires the CEO and/or board chairperson of each InterAction member to certify that his/her organization is in compliance with the agreed upon standards, or, where it is not in compliance, to indicate what steps they have committed to take to attain compliance. The self-certification process continues to involve active dialogue between the elected Membership & Standards Committee and the members. For further guidance please refer to InterAction's Standards Interpretive Guidance and Member Guidelines². In addition, InterAction maintains a resource center of relevant materials for use by the members.

InterAction is especially indebted to Ken Phillips, who served as InterAction's elected chairman of the Board and of the executive committee from November 1990 through November 1992, for his vision and for the skillful way in which he guided the open process to assure full involvement of InterAction's membership.

InterAction proudly heralds the Standards to the larger NGO community, to the media, to donors, and to the international community itself. We are indebted to the Rockefeller Brothers Fund, most notably to its program officer William Moody, for its financial support and leadership in fostering this important process.

InterAction's NGO Standards have directly and significantly influenced the standards-setting processes of comparable groups in Canada, Japan, Asia, Eastern Europe, and Central Europe. Thus, in addition to reinforcing public confidence in our own members, we are pleased to note InterAction's leadership in facilitating the increasing adoption of open and transparent financial, operational, and ethical standards among NGOs in numerous other countries.

Since the first drafting of the Standards more than 25 years ago, numerous areas have been reviewed, amended and added including, but not limited to:

- The Material (Gift-in-Kind) Assistance section of the Standards was developed and revised over the years and requires that member organizations comply with the Standards when providing material assistance.
- Gender and diversity amendments to the Standards, which became effective in January 1998, grew from the realization that organizations need to diversify their boards and staff in order to become more effective and credible as they implement programs serving a widely diverse population overseas.
- The Food Aid Standards were added on March 1, 2012, Educational Material Standards on December 4, 2012 and the Clothing Standards on March 2, 2013, each one to act as a source for any organization involved in the handling of food, books and educational materials and/or clothing. They are to serve as a compass, in order to encourage members of InterAction to adhere to industry best practices whenever possible.
- The InterAction NGO Standards for Associate Members was approved by the InterAction Board of Directors on March 6, 2014.
- Outcomes measurement standards founded in Section 3.0 Organization Integrity and Transparency were approved by the membership in December 2018.
- The pharmaceutical gifts-in-kind valuation methodology and updated standards, found in Section 7.0 Program, were also member approved and integrated into the Standards in December 2018.

- 7.11.3 A member shall make a clear distinction between its fundraising and development education efforts, especially in its financial reporting, adhering to the relevant positions of the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants (AICPA) regarding the appropriate allocation of the expenses related to these activities.

7.12 Material (Gift-in-Kind) Assistance

- 7.12.1 Programs involving the provision of emergency and material assistance shall be carried out, to the maximum extent feasible, in a manner intended to support and enhance local know-how and productive capacity, to reduce vulnerability to future disasters, and to lay the basis for long-term development.

- 7.12.2 A member utilizing gifts-in-kind shall assure that such assistance is related to the basic mission and purposes of the organization and only items that are appropriate to the local situation will be received and disbursed. Any donations of material assistance will be carried out in accordance with Interaction's General Program Standards (Section 7.1). All donated resources should be approved by the recipient prior to shipment and be appropriate to the recipient location, and donated items shall comply with quality standards in both country of origin and country of usage. Materials provided shall be appropriate (i.e. sensitive to the local culture and situation) and based on an assessment of local needs.
- 7.12.3 A member engaging in gift-in-kind assistance programs shall take steps to mitigate against negative outcomes resulting from gift-in-kind donations, such as local market disruption, diversion for non-humanitarian purposes, dependency among beneficiaries, or environmental hazards resulting from the disposal of un-used or discarded items.
- 7.12.4 A number of resources to guide and inform members' professional standards in gift-in-kind activity can be found in the following references: *Guidelines for Drug Donations*⁵⁵ of the World Health Organization (WHO), *the Sphere Standards for Emergency Response*⁵⁶, the *Interagency Gifts-In-Kind Standards*⁵⁷ of the Association of Evangelical Relief and Development Organizations (AERDO/ACCORD), the Guidelines of the Partnership for Quality Medical Donations (PQMD)⁵⁸ and InterAction's Pharmaceutical Recommended Methodology Decision Tree and Pricing Inputs Catalog.⁵⁹
- 7.12.5 A member utilizing gifts-in-kind shall have policies that clearly describe the valuation and auditing methods used, to ensure that the value of assistance is accurately stated. The basis and method for valuing donated gifts-in-kind will be compliant with IRS requirements and FASB guidance and should be disclosed in an organization's audited financial statements. Members will ensure valuation sources are current and regularly consider relevant changes in market conditions when determining fair value. Because of the technical complexity of valuing gifts-in-kind, members are encouraged to develop detailed and transparent valuation policies. In order to enhance the credibility of the programmatic benefit that gift-in-kind contributions create and to mitigate against the risk that gifts-in-kind values are viewed skeptically, members should seek valuation methodologies that exercise reasoned judgment in their interpretation of the "fair value" concept and their selection of source data when determining values. For purposes of recording revenue and expense, gifts-in-kind donations should be valued at their fair value as of the date of donation. Donations should not be unduly influenced by the financial considerations of the member. Important guidance on fair value measurement can be found in Financial Accounting Standards Board (FASB) website⁶⁰.
- 7.12.6 A member who receives in-kind gifts shall ensure its fundraising solicitation do not create a false impression or misunderstanding about how its cash and non-cash resources are utilized.
- 7.12.7 Members will ensure that fees related to gifts-in-kind assistance will be assessed in relation to the cost incurred, not to the value of the goods involved; that those costs are clearly communicated to organizations that pay processing fees; that gifts-in-kind will be used for the purpose intended by the donor and will not be diverted for financial gain unrelated to the purpose for which the gift was made; and that proper documentation will be maintained on all gift-in-kind transactions. Members - will ensure that internal policies and controls exist to prevent gifts-in-kind from being bartered, traded or sold.

- 7.12.8 Members shall comply with all relevant US export laws, including but not limited to regulations and statutes put in place by the US Departments of Treasury (OFAC), Commerce (BIS), Justice (DEA) and State as well as the US Patriot Act. Members shall comply with applicable export and import laws and provide necessary support to recipient organizations undertaking importation processes.
- 7.12.9 Additional guidance on gift-in-kind assistance can be found in section 7.13, Pharmaceutical and Medical Resources.
- 7.13 *Pharmaceutical and Medical Resources
- 7.13.1 The actions of the member: Regarding the provision of pharmaceutical and medical resources, a member should operate in a way consistent with its stated mission and nondiscriminatory practices, that does not compromise patient safety and that clearly delineates program expenses to be incurred by the member and its recipient.
- 7.13.1.1 A member receiving and distributing medical supplies shall be guided and informed by the World Health Organization Guidelines for Drug Donations and the WHO Model List of Essential Medicines²¹.
- 7.13.2 The authority of the recipient: A member should be guided by needs expressed by qualified host-country recipients. Qualified recipients may be appropriate governmental agencies or qualified private sector entities, such as national or international non-governmental organizations, local hospitals, and community health centers. Drugs should not be sent without prior consent from the recipient.
- 7.13.3 The appropriateness of the resources: All donations should be based on an expressed need and be relevant to the disease pattern and consumption rates in the recipient country.
- 7.13.3.1 All donated drugs or their generic equivalents should be approved for use in the recipient country and appear on the national list of essential drugs or, if a national list is not available, on the WHO Model List of Essential Medicines,²² unless requested otherwise by the recipient.
- 7.13.3.2 The presentation, strength, and formulation of donated drugs should be similar to those of drugs commonly used in the recipient country.
- 7.13.3.3 When making pharmaceutical and other medical donations, members shall ensure that the recipient has adequate medical capacity to appropriately use the donated item (i.e. diagnostics and patient monitoring, continuity of therapy after the donation has been consumed, matching parts, consumables and/or equipment required, etc.).
- 7.13.3.4 All donated drugs should be obtained from reliable sources and comply with quality standards in both the country of origin and the country of usage.
- 7.13.3.5 Drugs that have been issued to patients and then returned to a pharmacy or elsewhere, or were given to health professionals as free samples, should not be donated.

- 7.13.3.6 After arrival in the recipient country, all donated drugs should have a remaining shelf life of at least one year. If an exception is made, the responsible professional at the receiving end must be informed of the quantity and remaining shelf life to allow for proper administration prior to expiration. In all cases, the date of arrival, the expiration dates, and the quantities of the drugs should be communicated to the recipient well in advance.
- 7.13.3.7 The member shall have a policy that states that donated drugs will not be used by recipients after expiry date. Members should also have a policy on the disposal of unused drugs that is compliant with applicable environmental standards and regulations and members should establish an up-front understanding with the recipient as to who will bear the cost burden of destruction in the event that donated items cannot be used and need to be disposed of. Important guidance on this issue can be found in the following reference: “Guidelines for Safe Disposal of Unwanted Pharmaceuticals in and after Emergencies²³” of the World Health Organization.
- 7.13.3.8 All drugs should be labeled in a language that is easily understood by health professionals in the recipient country; the label on each individual container should contain, at minimum, the International Nonproprietary Name (INN) or generic name, batch number, dosage form, strength, name of manufacturer, quantity in the container, storage conditions, and expiration date.
- 7.13.3.9 Members shall have systems in place that allow the member and its recipients to implement product recalls.
- 7.13.4 The assurance of effective handling and delivery: The shipment and delivery of donations should be the responsibility of the member and cause as little burden as possible to the qualified host-country recipient. Donating members should inform recipients of key logistical information regarding the delivery of pre-approved drug donation shipments being made between the recipient and donating member.
- 7.13.4.1 Donated drugs should be presented in unit size and packaging appropriate for the dispensing authority.
- 7.13.4.2 All drug donations should be packed in accordance with international shipping regulations and be accompanied by a detailed packing list which specifies the contents of each numbered shipping unit by INN, dosage form, quantity, expiration date, volume, weight, and any special storage conditions. The weight per carton in each shipping unit should not exceed 50 kilograms. Unless in recipient-approved, pre-packaged units, drugs should not be mixed with other supplies in the same carton.
- 7.13.4.3 Costs of international and local transport, warehousing, port clearance, and appropriate storage and handling should be paid by the donor agency, unless specifically agreed otherwise with the recipient in advance.
- 7.13.5 The assessment of activities: A member will maintain documentation relating to the handling and use of all donations.

7.13.5.1 Members should maintain written policies and procedures to evaluate potential pharmaceutical donations to ensure that they meet appropriate programmatic, medical, cultural, and ethical criteria.

7.13.5.2 All donations should have proper documentation relating to product value, inventory, verification of receipt, record of transfer and to the extent possible, consumption.

7.14 Food Aid

7.14.1 Criteria For Food Aid Distribution

Members will assess and consider the availability of locally sourced food commodities and the implications of both local purchase and the importation of food will have on local production and market systems. Members will introduce general (free) distributions of food aid only when absolutely necessary, i.e., whenever a food aid response is required to sustain life, reduce and prevent malnutrition in food insecure communities. Incentivized food distribution programs that are not “free”, i.e. food-for-education or food-for-work, are not restricted to these crises.

Food aid should be targeted to those most in need and discontinued as soon as possible. When free distributions of food become necessary, locally procured, culturally appropriate, dry rations should be used whenever possible. Both locally/regionally purchased and imported food aid distributions should avoid the creation of disincentives toward local food production and a negative impact on local markets. When importing food aid, members will assure that the populations served by the food aid are those living in extreme poverty (earning less than $2/day or measured by the level of child mortality), and therefore having little impact on the market share. Additionally, the extremity of need, together with careful rationing, will diminish greatly the issue of selling the food aid received.

7.14.2 Food Aid Policy and Compliance

Members will share technical and operational information that will contribute to the overall improvement of the efficiency and effectiveness of food aid. Members should establish and periodically review a food aid policy that explains the organization’s purpose in using food as a program resource and its understanding of the responsibilities and obligations inherent in the use of food. As applicable, the policy should be in compliance with *InterAction’s Food Aid Guidelines*²⁴, which were informed by and/or drawn from *Sphere Project Humanitarian Charter and Minimum Standards in Disaster Response*²⁵, *FAO/WHO Codex Alimentarius Standards*²⁶ and from best practices of InterAction member organizations.

7.14.3 Food Aid Ration Planning

Members rationing their own food aid (where the donor does not specify it) will design rations for distribution after investigating the population’s needs for energy, protein, fat and micronutrients. Members will determine the amount of the rations to be distributed with a view of bridging the gap between the affected population’s requirement and its access and availability to food resources.

7.14.4 Food Aid Appropriateness and Acceptability

Members will provide food items that are appropriate and acceptable to recipients. Members will avoid distribution of foods that disrespect the cultural or religious traditions of the beneficiaries. If a nutritious food is procured that is not part of the regular diet of the beneficiary, an appropriate education component would be necessary in order to adapt the food and its preparation to the existing culture. Members should avoid the sole distribution of foods lacking in nutritional value or rich in elements that would create health concerns, such as candy, particularly under conditions where they would be consumed in lieu of meals.

7.14.5 Food Aid Quality And Safety

Members will distribute food of appropriate quality and fit for human consumption that conforms to international standards and the standards of recipient countries. Should the recipient country not have existing published standards, it is recommended that members use standards of *The FAO/WHO Codex Alimentarius*²⁷. Members will follow up promptly and handle in a transparent and fair manner any recipient complaints about food quality that could affect the health of the recipient. This would not include individual taste preferences.

7.14.6 Food Aid Management Handling

Members will distribute, whenever possible, food that can be used efficiently and securely at the household level. Where circumstances allow, members will address food aid recipients' difficulties in storage, preparing, cooking or consuming the food distributed, including the lack of access to cooking utensils, clean water and sanitation and cooking fuel required for safe methods of food preparation.

7.14.7 Food Aid Supply Chain Management

Members will implement supply chain management systems that will ensure that food aid resources reach the intended beneficiaries. A typical supply chain may be structured as follows, allowing for some flexibility in the middle levels: the donor, the US NGO beneficiary, the principal distributing partner(s) in country, secondary distributing partners, aid workers/missionaries/relief workers/volunteers, final beneficiary. Members should ensure the proper transportation channels are used in the moving of food aid from donor to final recipient (which may include trucking, overseas shipping, and local distribution). Depending on the food commodity, this may require refrigeration, fumigation, inspections, and proper importation documents, such as certificates required by recipient countries for the importation of various foods. To efficiently manage the supply chain, members should collect the proper reporting of impact and/or outcome measures of the final distribution. Members should ensure proper distribution reporting at all levels of the chain, assuring that, should there be a recall of product; the member should be able to successfully remove the undistributed product out of circulation. Supply chain management and structure may vary according to the culture of each individual organization, but the aim of keeping the donor well-informed and aware of the good his contribution is accomplishing should be common to all.

7.14.8 Food Aid Distribution Management

Members will assure that the method of food distribution is responsive, transparent, equitable and appropriate to local conditions. Members should make certain that the recipients of food aid are identified and targeted on the basis of need, by means of an assessment carried out through consultation with stakeholders. Food aid should primarily assist the most vulnerable members of the community, such as children, the elderly, the disabled, identified in consultation with local groups and partner organizations and frequently monitored in order to avoid discrimination and assure that food continues to reach the intended recipients.

7.14.9 Food Aid in Disaster Response

- a) When responding with food aid to disasters, members will coordinate their efforts with informed advisors and stakeholders from UN cluster systems, local communities and governments and/or local NGOs to determine the most appropriate types and quantities of food aid, the most efficient supply chain management, and those most in need.
- b) Distributions of donated breast milk substitutes should be guided by advice given by WHO and/or UNICEF related to the intended beneficiaries and their current circumstances²⁸.

7.14.10 Food Aid and Development Programs

Members will, where possible, use food aid to support development in agricultural, aquaculture, animal husbandry, fish farming, education and other community development projects, allowing the recipients to build capital and capacity toward self-sufficiency.

7.14.11 Valuation of Donated Food

Regarding basis and methods for valuing donated gifts-in-kind, please see section 7.12.5 in these standards. In addition, important guidance on fair value measurement can be found in Financial Accounting Standards Board (FASB) website.

7.15 Books & Educational Materials

7.15.1 Purpose of Donating Books & Educational Materials

Members involved with book and educational materials donations shall strive to achieve the following developmental goals in the distribution destinations: expand literacy and the knowledge base of the readership; encourage the dissemination of knowledge broadly within the community; foster a systemic understanding of educational principles; support the attainment of national education goals; and thoughtfully enhance discussion in the public sphere.

7.15.2 Criteria for Books Donations

Members shall not “dump” books on the local market but will provide relevant books where needs have been communicated from local receiving organizations. Members will screen books prior to shipment to ensure the books are culturally appropriate, are relevant to local or national circumstances, and will meet the needs of the local readers. Members will not ship educational materials that have been removed due to outdated, false or offensive content or that transgress national laws and regulations for importing printed materials.

7.15.3 Criteria for Educational Materials Donation

Members will ensure that donated educational materials comply with national educational standards. Recipient organizations should develop relationships with local education councils or authorities to establish which materials are most needed and conducive to the desired educational outcomes. Samples of educational materials may have to be sent to the destination country for approval by the government entity overseeing education. Educational materials should be sent only upon request and such materials should not dictate the education curriculum in any community. Members should strive to obtain the most recently published educational materials.

7.15.4 Policy for Donating Books & Educational Materials

Members shall share operational information to contribute to the development of improved resource management that will maximize the efficacy of book and educational material donations industry wide. Members will periodically review and evaluate internal policy to ensure book donations support locally/nationally desired literacy and educational outcomes to promote the greater development of readership, and to not adversely affect local publishing industries.

7.15.5 Distribution of Educational Materials

Members will strive to utilize or develop partnerships with local organizations that can broadly benefit the communities by promoting gender equality and providing public access to the books through schools or public libraries. The local organizations will have access to the communities and their readers and can communicate reading needs to donors. Destination organizations should request books and provide information to donors about potential readers, the premises where the books would be retained, and the reading needs of the communities. If possible, distributions of books and educational materials should complement other institutions and organizations.

7.15.6 Condition of Books & Educational Materials

Members should work with donors and recipients to ensure that only new or like new books are donated. Preference should be given to quality over quantity.

7.15.7 Shipping Books & Educational Materials

Product should be sorted, organized and labeled for identification, package appropriately for transit conditions. To avoid damage, members should properly pack books to protect against any weather-related contingencies of international shipping. Members should have an accurate listing of the shipping contents to maintain transparency with destination country customs administrations and to provide an accurate inventory for destination organizations.

7.15.8 Receiving Books & Educational Materials

Members should ensure that recipient organizations have the capacity to receive and distribute the quantity and type of donated books and educational materials shipped to them, including offloading, storage and sorting of materials.

7.15.9 Clearing Customs

Members should prepare all necessary documentation and information for consignee organizations in order to facilitate customs clearance, in accordance with the recipient country requirements. Consignee organizations should manage relationships with the national authorities to facilitate duty/tax waiver and efficient processing of customs formalities.

7.15.10 Valuation Method for Book Donations

Regarding the basis and method for valuing donated gifts-in-kind, please see section 7.12.5. Members will have organizational policies in place to establish a consistent valuation methodology that complies with GAAP principles.

7.16 Clothing

7.16.1 Purpose of Clothing Donations

Members shall use clothing donations to provide recipients with decent and adequate protection from the weather/environmental elements that will help foster a sense of self-decency and self-respect for inclusion and participation in society. Clothing donations should be made to support organizations' local program activities and tied to specific program and organizational objectives.

7.16.2 Assessment of Clothing Needs

Members shall only ship and distribute clothing donations where needs have been communicated from local receiving organizations. Members should assess the geography and weather of the recipient country to determine the type of clothing that will correctly match the needs. Members should further assess the potential impact on the local economy and not send clothing to countries or localities where the impact would be negative. Before any clothing articles are shipped, members should assess the in-country laws and regulations to determine if any prohibitions will prevent the importation of certain articles of clothing.

7.16.3 Clothing Quality Requirements

Members shall only accept and distribute clothing donations that are suitable for wear according to reasonable standards. Clothing articles, new or used, shall be free from defects or have only minimal defects that do not affect the intended wear of the clothing and are minimally distinguishable.

7.16.4 Cultural Sensitivity of Clothing

Members will make reasonable efforts to take into account cultural sensitivities before clothing is accepted or sent for distribution to the beneficiaries. Cultural sensitivities should be considered on a country-by-country basis and take into account local knowledge, if possible. All donated clothing articles shall be free of offensive logos or statements and should be culturally sensitive. Members shall not accept donations of offensive clothing unless reasonable efforts can be made to remove offensive logos or statements without negatively affecting the clothing functionality.

7.16.5 Shipping Clothing

Members should properly pack any shipment of clothing to minimize any potential damage during transport. A reasonable effort should be made in properly sorting and packaging like items to aid in efficient distribution by the receiving organization. Members should have an accurate listing of the shipping contents to maintain transparency with destination country customs administrations and to provide an accurate inventory for receiving organizations.

7.16.6 Clearing Customs

Members should prepare all the necessary documentation and information for receiving organizations in order to facilitate customs clearance, in accordance with the recipient country requirements. Receiving organizations should manage relationships with the national authorities to facilitate duty/tax waivers and efficient processing of customs formalities. When shipping used clothing, fumigation requirements, if any, must be determined before shipment.

7.16.7 Receiving Clothing

Members will ensure that recipient organizations have the capacity to receive and safely store clothing items. Storage facilities should be secure from theft; structurally adequate to avoid spoilage of clothing; and be accessible for monitoring and compliance.

7.16.8 Assessment of Distribution Requirements

Members will ensure that recipient organizations make assessments of the local conditions including emergencies and will prioritize distributions to address urgent needs. Members should coordinate distributions with other NGOs to eliminate unnecessary duplications and to ensure the impacts of the distributions are maximized, especially in times of emergencies.

7.16.9 Distribution Logistics

Members should tailor their distributions to local requirements on the ground and should use the distribution channels (local organizations, partners or groups) that most efficiently and effectively meet their objectives. Members should ensure that partner distribution structure is in compliance with organizational policies and objectives.

7.16.10 Matching Clothing to Beneficiaries

Members shall distribute clothing in appropriate sizes corresponding to individual beneficiaries. Members should allow latitude for individual preference within reason if there is enough clothing to allow it.

7.16.11 No Discrimination in Distributions of Clothing

In making distributions of clothing, members shall in no case discriminate based on race, ethnicity, gender, sexual orientation or religious affiliation.

7.16.12 Valuation Methods for Clothing

Regarding the basis and method for valuing donated gifts-in-kind, please see section 7.12.5. Members will have organizational policies in place to establish a consistent valuation methodology that complies with GAAP principles.

7.16.13 Clothing Donated for Resale

These standards are not intended to apply to clothing donations gathered for the purpose of domestic monetization. Neither do the standards prohibit the sale of donated clothing within the US to raise program revenue, whether sold to domestic wholesalers, retailers or end-users, or to overseas for-profit importers, provided members are transparent with donors (at collection sites and internet sites) regarding the resale of their donated clothing.

Donated clothing imported into a host country under declaration of donation intent should not be sold under any circumstances.

8 Public Policy

- 8.1 A member organization shall have a clear policy describing the circumstances in which it will involve itself in advocacy, public policy, and/or lobbying activities
- 8.2 Members adopting advocacy and public policy positions shall have an organizationally approved policy that defines the process for adopting and implementing such positions.
- 8.3 Advocacy, public policy, and lobbying activities by members shall be non-partisan (i.e. not associated with a specific political party) in nature and shall conform to applicable U.S. non-profit law.
- 8.4 Activities intended to influence public policy in the U.S. or other countries shall be undertaken in accordance with the individual member organization's established policies and within applicable laws.
- 8.5 In taking public policy positions, member organizations shall be informed and guided by public policy positions unanimously adopted by InterAction.

9 Implementation

- 9.1 Self-certification that an agency meets the Standards is required for membership in InterAction. Each applicant organization accepts responsibility for following the Standards. An organization that meets the Standards may refer in its promotional materials to this fact. InterAction will maintain and make available a current list of qualifying organizations.
- 9.2 Yearly filing of the latest annual report and an audited financial statement by the chair of the board of directors and/or the chief executive officer of the organization, attesting that it meets the high ethical Standards of InterAction will be required and due December 31 of each year.

The organization will have the opportunity to respond to the allegations and to review and respond to all charges and evidence to be considered by the Standards Committee. The organization concerned will also have the right to appear in person before the Standards Committee or its designee. The complaint will be kept confidential to the extent possible, consistent with the obligation to investigate.

If the Standards Committee deems an organization to be out of compliance with the Standards, it shall be given a reasonable time to make a serious effort to come into compliance. The Standards Committee may recommend to the executive committee that the membership of organizations that do not come into compliance with the Standards within a reasonable time be suspended or terminated.

When a member agency substantially fails to maintain the standards for admission and continuing membership and fails or refuses to remedy this situation within a reasonable time, the executive committee may, by majority vote, suspend or terminate the membership of such member. Any organization recommended for suspension or expulsion will be entitled to a hearing before the executive committee prior to suspension or expulsion.

In the event of a negative determination by the executive committee, the organization may appeal directly to the board of directors.

The Standards Committee will issue a report annually to the members.
